ZZURA

Where the air is colourful and the wind is scented...

BEHIND ZZURA
THERE IS ZERZURA

Zerzura, the Shangri-La of the sands, a mythical lost city, an undiscovered oasis in the middle of the Sahara, proximally located to the Nile Valley. Throughout the ages, the quest for Zerzura has inspired explorers, both local and foreign.

Al Ktab al-Kudnuz, a 15th century Arabic treasure hunter, described Zerzura as a place of gold and treasures buried in the heart of the desert and guarded by a white bird. Centuries since, Zerzura became the goal of a group of foreign explorers, led by Englishman Ralph Bagnold who created the Zerzura club in London.

To this day, Zerzura remains a mythical and spell-binding place, an alluringly allegory for all that is wild, beautiful, and always woefully out of reach.
